NEW ORLEANS — Two men said they were shot while walking down Bourbon Street just after midnight Sunday.

A preliminary report by the New Orleans Police Department states the men were walking in the 400 block of Bourbon Street when they heard a pop.

The report states they told police they flagged down a security guard, who pointed to a balcony.

The 22-year-old victim said he began feeling pain in his calf, while the 21-year-old victim felt a pain in his foot.

The victims said they fled to a business in the 800 block of Bienville Street, where the 21-year-old victim said he noticed blood filling up his shoe.

The victims then called an Uber and were taken to a local hospital to be treated, the report said.

The alleged shooting comes just two weeks after a woman was killed on Bourbon Street and a security guard was injured.
